When a Capitals Indicator or a Capitals Terminator is present, it is disregarded in determining whether to use the lower wordsign.

BE ALL THAT YOU CAN BE

Now apply the rule below, the lower wordsign is not used when in contact with any punctuation sign, including the hyphen and dash, which has only lower dots, even when in contact with the Italic Typeform Word Indicator. (Below, the word, his is next to a question mark which would be all lower dots so you would NOT contract the word his.)

Remember, Typeform indicators decide the style of a letter, word, or passage to reflect what is shown in print; however, punctuation is part of the structure of the sentence.
