

Capitalized Passage and Letter-Sequence

RULE A capitalized letter or letters-sequence placed adjacent to the beginning or end of a capitalized passage is not necessarily considered to be part of the passage, especially if it is separated from the passage by a space or punctuation.

Examples:

"... at 11:00 AM"—MARKHAM ECONOMIST AND SUN

Here is a great example to reference.

Example: COLLECT DISTRIBUTE I / O

- Should I use as an entire passage?
- Should I double cap words, single cap letters, with no space around forward slash?

Question: Which option below would be preferred?

Option 1:

Option 2:

Answer: Option 1 uses less space.
